

Quote:

"I don't chase scoops, I look for tiny scraps, and am obsessed with verification. What makes me get up in the morning? I know my work can't change the world but it can contribute to making it a bit less of a dark place. My mantras: Even your most precise weapon is only as precise as your intelligence. If there is money for the war there must be money for the consequences of the war," Donatella Rovera.

Background information about Donatella Rovera:

Donatella has been investigating war crimes and other human rights' abuses in conflicts and crisis around the world, notably across the Middle East and Africa, for Amnesty International for over 20 years. Recent field missions include Israel/Gaza, Syria, Libya, Iraq, Yemen, Nigeria, South Sudan, Central African Republic, Somalia, Ivory Coast, and Sudan. Previously, she worked in Israel/Palestine, Lebanon, Algeria and other parts of the Middle East & North Africa. Rovera studied at the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS, London University), specialising in Middle Eastern politics and economics. Subsequent training includes international human rights and humanitarian law, refugee law, and international criminal investigations. She also speaks English, French, Arabic, Spanish, Italian, and Hebrew.